TROOPS AGAIN CALLED.

This Time to Prevent a Threatened Uprising in Illinois.

DEPUTY MARSHALS OVERPOWERED.

They Are Compelled to Release Prisoners Whom They Had Arrested for Stopping Coal Trains—The Strikers Gradually Resuming.

CHICAGO, June 18.—At a late hour last night General Wheeler, commanding the First brigade, Illinois National Guard, received orders from the adjutant general to send the Seventh regiment, Colonel Colby commanding, to Mount Olive at once to assist the local authorities in preserving peace.

The strikers have been acting in a riotous manner at Mount Olive for a week past, preventing the movement of trains containing coal from mines and committing other lawless acts. Saturday night a party of United States deputy marshals went to Mount Olive from Springfield and arrested several of the leaders of the men who had been instrumental in stopping traffic on a part of the lands of the federal court. Nearly a thousand strikers and sympathizers gathered, however, and made such threatening demonstrations that the deputies released the men and returned to Springfield.

The sheriff reported to the governor that he was unable to cope with the mob without aid, and although there had been no serious rioting as yet, it was deemed best to take precautionary measures. The Seventh regiment left this city shortly after midnight on a special train.

Indiana Miners Weakening.

BRAZIL, Ind., June 18.—The block coal miners of this district are greatly dissatisfied over the decision of the strikers in conference at Terre Haute, when the Columbus compromise was denounced and the national officers urged to resign. When the report reached this city crowds of strikers congregated and many declared they would return to work if they had to carry Winchesters for protection. The mines in the county did not begin operations today as most of the operators have not expressed a willingness to pay the price. The block miners will hold a mass meeting here some day this week to determine whether they shall notify the operators that they are willing to go to work or continue the strike. If a strike is voted part of the strikers will return to work, which may result in serious trouble. At Knightsville, Harmony, Centre Point and in this city the miners voted Friday to go to work, and so instructed their delegates to the state convention and it is generally believed that they will return to work soon.

Indiana Miners' Demands.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 18.—The miners' conference adjourned late last night after a two days' session. A scale of prices for mining coal and for all day laborers in and around coal mines was adopted, which is about the same as that for 1893. In some districts the demanded price is a fraction higher and in others lower, averaging about the same as was paid last year. Resolutions were adopted calling for pay every two weeks, check weighmen and an arbitration committee of three persons to be chosen, one by the miners, who take Lieutenant Governor Gill, one by the operators, and the third to be chosen by these two. Any operator granting the demanded scale can resume work by June 20.

Massillon Miners Still Out.

MASSILLON, O., June 18.—Captain Freed and Corporal Van Dusen, of the Logan Rifles of Youngstown, personally captured J. E. and C. D. Bair at Beach City and held them under arrest for shooting from ambush. Nine shots were fired. The prisoners turned state's evidence. Work was resumed today in the Pittsburg district, on the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad at Laurelton, Long Run and Dillonvale. At Sherrodsville the miners continue idle, and this is also true at all the Cleveland, Lorraine and Wheeling mines. The strike in the Massillon district will continue indefinitely.

Revengeful Cripple Creek Miners.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 18.—A private dispatch received in this city from Cripple Creek states that the Bull Hill miners are already forming a vigilance committee to rid the camp of the men who are not to their liking. If this thing is kept up there is liable to be a lively conflict. The indignation of the people is also raised over the fact that several men who recently went to the camp as deputies have received threatening letters. A quiet, systematic effort is being made to discover the writers, and should they be apprehended they will undoubtedly be roughly treated.

President McBride's Confidence.

COLUMBUS, O., June 18.—President John McBride, of the United Mine Workers, said today that in his opinion the whole of the Hocking Valley mining region would resume work tomorrow. President McBride thinks they will all go to work eventually under the settlement, and hopes that the resumption of work may not be postponed longer than two weeks.

Ohio Miners Resume.

BELLAIRE, O., June 18.—Today finds Belmont county without a soldier, the last regiment breaking camp yesterday. This region has seen the last of the greatest conflict in its history thus far. The big coal mines along the Baltimore and Ohio, the Cleveland, Lorraine and Wheeling, and the Wheeling and Lake Erie roads are in full operation today.

Michigan Iron Miners on Strike.

IRONWOOD, Mich., June 18.—The miners on the Gogebic range went on strike today for more pay. The companies refuse to negotiate with committees from the unions, but are willing to hear their workmen individually as to their grievances. Three thousand men are affected. The mine owners threaten to close down their properties indefinitely.

To Resume on Full Time.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 18.—Orders have been issued for the mines of the Delaware and Hudson Canal company to resume work at full time for an indefinite period. The order affects 10,000 men at the mines, and will greatly help the railroad employes. It is said that the coal trade will be heavier for some time to come.

Another Conference of Employes.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 18.—All the operators here have received notice to attend a conference to be held in Philadelphia today. Those who have conceded the compromise price are at a loss to account for the reason for the conference, but all will attend. Five companies at South Fork and one at Gallitzin have posted notices to their miners that the present rate will go into effect at once, and that hereafter forty-five cents a net ton will be paid for mining. The miners were reinstated from work today with the exception of tomorrow.

Fuel for the New York Central.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 18.—The miners employed along the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg railroad returned to work this morning. Most of the coal will be shipped over the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg road to the New York Central, which is practically out of fuel at present.

Troops Still at Canal Dover.

CANAL DOVER, O., June 18.—In a conference with Colonel Commandant Adams decided to retain the troops here until tomorrow. A number of the heaviest taxpayers of the county claim the railroad bridges here will be burned as soon as the troops leave.

Ten Thousand to Strike.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 18.—District President McDermott is authority for the statement that 10,000 miners in Kansas will go on a sympathetic strike next Thursday. The strike is to force a settlement in Missouri and the Indian Territory.

AUSTRIAN SILESIAN MINE HORROR

It Resulted in the Killing of Two Hundred and Thirty Men.

TROPPAU, June 18.—The total number of deaths resulting from the explosion that occurred in a mine near here a few days ago is 230. Engineer Kohut, the sole survivor of the party that went to attempt the rescue of the miners, said in an interview today that he heard a fearful explosion on Thursday night. He immediately rushed to the pit head, from which a dense smoke and a cloud of coal dust belched forth. He formed a party and descended 800 feet into the mine. They entered the fourth level, where they found the bodies of twenty-four miners and several dead horses lying at the entrance. The gallery was blocked with fallen beams and coal.

While waiting for reinforcements fifteen survivors issued from the well leading from the fifth level. They were almost exhausted and in a dazed condition, but all joined in the work of rescue. Herr Kohut returned to the main shaft and signalled for assistance. Suddenly another terrific explosion occurred, hurling the wagons together and throwing Herr Kohut to the ground. His hat fell down the shaft, but he clutched a door, which prevented him going down also. The lamps of the level were extinguished. Herr Kohut held a handkerchief to his mouth, and this prevented him from being choked to death by the afterdamp. He was, however, gradually losing his senses when the cage, in which the pitmen were fleeing from the lower level, rose in the shaft. Herr Kohut shouted, and was taken into the cage and raised to the surface.

A second party descended into the mine and bravely entered the galleries. They found all the first rescue party dead. The rescuers continued their explorations, and although they were badly burned, recovered some bodies, most of which were unrecognizable. The mine is still burning, and it will not be possible to resume work for six months. Four hundred children are left fatherless.

Uncle Sam Cannot Aid Kizminski.

BUFFALO, June 18.—A letter from Acting Secretary Edwin F. Uhl, of the state department, has been received by Attorney W. W. Sapperston, representing the petition in the Kizminski case, praying for the aid of the United States government to release this Polish-American citizen from Siberian mines. Mr. Uhl finds that Kizminski was a native Pole, who came to the United States after having taken part in the unsuccessful revolution of 1863. He says: "There is no naturalization convention between the two countries and no treaty limitation upon the power of either government to proceed against a foreign nation or subject returning to its territory for an offense prior to emigration." Nothing can be done for Kizminski."

The BREATH of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which is usually the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results by its use for years past, properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure. Call upon your druggist for it.

Mothers, Have You a Baby?

If so, get from your druggists to-day for 25 cents, a bottle of Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. Every baby often has distressing colic. Dr. Hand's Colic Cure gives immediate relief by removing wind from the stomach and quieting the nerves, giving restful sleep. Mother, think of the worry and anxiety this saves you. If your baby is teething Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion for 25 cents, soothes and relieves all pain. Sold by all druggists.

TARIFF BILL PROSPECTS

Predictions That the End Will be Reached This Week.

INCOME TAX WILL RAISE A BREEZE

Aside from This Feature, However, It Is Believed That There Will be Few Further Protests Against the Measure—The Anti-Option Bill in the House.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Senator Harris said when the senate adjourned on Saturday that the tariff bill would pass the senate by next Saturday and when Senator Aldrich, the leader of the opposition to the bill, was asked what he thought of Mr. Harris' prediction expressed the opinion that should it not be entirely realized it would come near it. "I think," he said "that by next Saturday night we shall be on the final vote of the bill."

Both declined to state whether there had been any negotiations for an agreement as to the time for the final vote between the leaders on the respective sides of the chamber. It is known, however, that this question has been canvassed more or less in the numerous conferences which have taken place between Senators Cockrell, Harris and Jones, on the Democratic side, and Senators Aldrich and Allison, on the Republican side. It is also known that they have not agreed definitely upon a time, because of the difficulty on the part of the Republicans of determining what time might be required for speeches by senators on that side. They have, however, canvassed the question sufficiently to feel assured that there will be comparatively few more long speeches.

There are, however some Republican senators who do not exactly agree with the joint prediction of Senators Harris and Aldrich, and who say that while they do not consider that the time for the final passage of the bill is not far distant, they think considerable time will be required for the consideration of the income tax and for the votes on various features of the bill, as well as probably some speeches when the bill shall be reported from the committee of the whole. It is not considered probable that the income tax can be disposed of within less than two or three days at the outside. There is also a probability that Senator Lodge's amendment for retaliation will be revived by the silver Republicans, which would have the effect of at least briefly reopening the silver question in connection with the tariff.

The only tariff schedules which have not been disposed of are silks, papers and sundries. These, with the free list, the income tax and the administrative features of the bill complete the measure. There is very little prospect of many speeches on silks or papers, but there are several articles in the schedule of sundries and in the free list which are calculated to develop debate. The wool question will be revived when the free item shall be reached in the free list, and while the contest will not be so prolonged as it was when the subject was taken up on the wool schedule, it promises to be quite animated for a short time.

It still seems strongly probable that the administration part of the bill will be withdrawn and the present administration law allowed to stand. Senator Jones said today that he favored this course for the purpose of expediting the passage of the bill, and his judgment will most likely be allowed by his Democratic colleagues to control their course.

The anti-option bill will be pressed to the front in the house of representatives, and Mr. Hatch, its author, is confident he can secure a vote on it about Wednesday. The deficiency appropriation bill, which is the last of the appropriation bills, was reported from the committee today, and it is expected that it will be taken up about Thursday when anti-option is out of the way. The members interested in the many southern war claims, which have been bunched as an omnibus bill claims, are seeking to get a special rule giving them an early hearing. These claims have been approved by the court of claims, but there is no way of paying them until congress makes an appropriation. The New Mexico statehood bill and the Cooper bill to tax greenbacks are also struggling for an opportunity for an early hearing.

Ex-Congressman Bayne's Funeral.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—The body of the late Hon. Thomas M. Bayne, who committed suicide in Washington by shooting, arrived here today over the Pennsylvania railroad in a special car, accompanied by Mrs. Bayne, Hon. John Dalzell, Hon. William A. Stone, Mrs. Martha Teese, sister of the deceased, and Mrs. Ewing, wife of General Charles Ewing. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. Teese, at Bellevue, and the interment will be at Union cemetery, Allegheny City.

Yale Wins the College Championship.

The game at Brooklyn on Saturday between Yale and Princeton attracted an audience of 10,000 people. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed, as on this game depended the college championship for 1894. At the end of the fifth inning the score stood 4 to 4, but after that Princeton failed to score, while Yale added 5 to her score, leaving Yale a winner by 9 to 4.

Looks Bad for the Peach Crop.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The report of the statistician of the department of agriculture for June says that a glance at the percentages of the condition of peaches on June 1 is sufficient to show how disastrous the season has been thus far. It is safe to construe the extremely low figures into practical failure of the crop. The condition for 1894 in the states producing the commercial crop, as compared with 1893 makes a poor showing for this year, as follows: New Jersey—1893, 104; 1894, 65. Delaware—1893, 93; 1894, 15. Maryland—1893, 94; 1894, 21. Virginia—1893, 65; 1894, 15. Georgia—1893, 82; 1894, 7. Ohio—1893, 74; 1894, 48. Michigan—1893, 96; 1894, 70. California—1893, 83; 1894, 95. The best prospects east of the Rocky mountains are in New Jersey and Michigan.

He Shot to Save His Bride.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Philip Moran, 45 years old, a plasterer was shot and killed yesterday morning at his house by Harvey Curtis, 22 years old, the fiancee of Moran's eldest daughter Frances, whom he was to marry in a few weeks. Moran was crazy drunk when he was shot, and held a revolver in his hand which he had aimed at his daughter's head. The facts in the case tend to show that Curtis shot only as a last resort, and to save the life of his intended bride. He acknowledged his guilt as was locked up. The tragedy occurred as the result of a quarrel between father and daughter.

Terribly Beaten with a Hoe.

HADDONFIELD, N. J., June 18.—Lewis Green, a laborer working for Amos Ebert, a farmer, residing at Ashland, two miles from here, committed a murderous assault on a boy named Archie Hall by attacking him with a hoe which he was using. Green cut several gashes in the boy's head, and tried to finish the lad by kicking him until he was unconscious, then left him for dead. Green had been beaten in an innocent game, and this led to the assault. Hall's condition is critical.

Tried to Murder Premier Crispi.

ROME, June 18.—An anarchist named Paul Lega, who was expelled to Genoa from France, shot at Signor Crispi as the Italian premier was going to the parliament. He missed Signor Crispi, although the bullet penetrated the carriage. The anarchist attempted to fire again, but the people stopped him. He was beaten and knocked down. Lega has confessed that he came to Rome on purpose to kill Signor Crispi.

Brutal Wife Murder in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—One of the most brutal murders ever committed here occurred Saturday night. The victim was Mrs. Jennie Hermess, a prepossessing woman about 38 years old. Her husband, Joseph Hermess, was the murderer. Hermess found fault because supper was not ready when he arrived home, and a few moments later killed his wife with a shotgun, blowing half her head off.

Poison in the Milk.

OTTAWA, Ill., June 18.—John Sailer, his daughter, three sons and three hired men, living near here, were poisoned by drinking a quantity of buttermilk which contained a vegetable poison. Investigation traced the poison in the milk to foul water where the cattle had been accustomed to drink. All are in a serious condition.

JUDGE PHELPS DEAD.

The Ex-Minister's Long Suffering Finally Ended.

HIS CAREER AS A DIPLOMATIST.

The Signal Service He Rendered the Government in Securing the Abolition of Germany's Embargo on Our Pork—His End Calm and Peaceful.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 18.—Ex-Minister William Walter Phelps died shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday morning at his home at Teaneck, N. J. He had been ill for a long time past and quite recently went south in the hope that his condition would be improved. He derived but little benefit from his southern trip, however, and but a short time ago was so prostrated that his physician ordered absolute quiet and rest. Gradually he grew worse, and for the past few days his death had been looked for at almost any moment. His physicians paid their last visit at 9:15 Saturday night.

The exact nature of Mr. Phelps' ailment was never definitely stated, but his illness was primarily from typhoid fever, which was followed by meningitis and other complications. He was not naturally of a robust constitution, and he inherited pulmonary troubles.

Mr. Phelps' end was peaceful, calm as though falling into a slumber. Mrs. Phelps is prostrated, the result of long watching by her husband's bedside.

All of the members of his family were at the dying man's bedside, including Baroness de Rottenburg, who had made a flying trip from Germany to fulfill a wish of her father, who said he wished to gaze on her face once more before he died. But her trip was made in vain, for while the ex minister saw his daughter, he failed to recognize her voice or features.

William Walter Phelps was born in New York city Aug. 24, 1839. He was early sent to Yale college, and he stood second in his class at his graduation in 1860. In the Columbia Law school he secured the valedictory in 1863. He was elected to the house of representatives in 1872, and took high rank as a debator almost at once. He became noted as one of the few men to whom the house would always listen. He was an ardent supporter of James G. Blaine in the presidential contentions of 1876, 1880 and 1884. In 1881 President Garfield sent him as United States minister to Austria. On the change of administration he at once tendered his resignation, and finally retired in August, 1882. He was immediately elected to congress from his old district.

In March, 1889, Mr. Phelps was appointed one of the three commissioners or special envoys to the Berlin conference on affairs in the Samoan islands. On Sept. 26 of the same year he presented his credentials, by appointment of President Harrison, as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Germany to Emperor William at Berlin. Mr. Phelps established an enviable reputation while at Berlin, one of his important diplomatic acts being the securing of the removal of the embargo on American pork.

Mr. Phelps during his official residence in Berlin was a great favorite in the society of the German capital. He was always on friendly terms with the two Bismarcks, father and son, and yet found it possible to get on comfortably with the emperor and with his present chancellor. On June 1, 1893, the day after he turned over the legation to his successor, his daughter was married to Dr. Franz von Rottenburg, a distinguished German official who had long been in close relations to Prince Bismarck. This daughter arrived from Germany on Friday last.

In January, 1893, while Mr. Phelps was still on duty at Berlin, Governor Werts appointed him a lay judge of the court of errors and appeals of New Jersey, and he was promptly and unanimously confirmed by the senate. On June 20, 1894, immediately after his return from Berlin, Judge Phelps took his seat on the bench, and discharged the duties of his position until prostrated by illness.

RAN INTO AN ICEBERG.

It Was at First Thought the Steamer Ethiopa Would Founder.

GLASGOW, June 18.—The Anchor line steamer Ethiopa, from New York June 2, reported as having been damaged in collision with an iceberg, has arrived here. She has a large hole in her bow. The accident occurred on the afternoon of June 6 during a heavy fog. The steamer struck the berg with great force, and it was at first thought the vessel would founder.

Orders were given to clear away and lower the small boats preparatory to abandoning the ship, but before the tackles were cast off from the davits Captain Wilson had had pumps placed near the spot, and soon found that the steamer was making comparatively little water. The order to lower the boats was countermanded, and the crew was ordered to build an artificial bulkhead. This was done, and the bulkhead was covered with canvas, which nearly checked the inflow of water. A number of barrels of flour, part of the vessel's cargo were then piled up near the hole. When the flour was saturated it formed a cement like wall.

The cargo in the forehold was shifted aft, and this caused the stern to sink until the hole in the bow was out of water. The fog lifted a short time after the collision. When the engines were started they were run at quarter speed for two days, when the weather holding good and the ship making very little water, they were run at three-quarters speed until Tory Island was reached. After this full speed was maintained until the steamer was near her destination. Nobody was injured, and the cargo sustained little damage.

New Jersey's Many Murderers.

TRENTON, June 18.—At the present time the state has fifteen men behind the bars in seven different county jails charged with murder, and six of them are under sentence of death. This is the high water mark for crime in New Jersey. Those sentenced to death are Joseph Wallwitz, for killing Keeper Lippincott in the state prison here; Joseph Korcis, an ignorant Hungarian, who killed his mistress in Mercer county; Wesley Warner, for killing Lizzie Peak in Mt. Holly; George Andrews, who cut his wife's throat at Washington; Charles Bergerman, killed his brother at Morristown. Richard Pierce (colored), wife murderer, the first murderer sentenced to death in Cape May county.

Saw His Victim Buried.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., June 18.—It has been discovered that the fatal draught which Edward Couch is said to have administered to W. R. Miller for the purpose of robbing him consisted of laudanum, powdered nutmeg and whisky. Miller was buried yesterday, and hundreds attended the funeral. Couch, from the window of the jail, overlooking the cemetery, saw the body of his victim lowered into the grave, and as he witnessed the scene he broke down for the first time since his arrest.

Tried to Murder by Slow Poison.

GREEN BAY, Wis., June 18.—Mrs. Engels and Alphonso De Cower have been found guilty of conspiring to murder Mrs. Engel's husband, a hotel keeper here. Mr. Engel has been slowly sinking into what was supposed to be consumption. A letter from De Cower to Mrs. Engels, however, fell into the husband's hands, revealing the fact that they were trying to get rid of him by slow poisoning. After his death they were to get married and gain possession of his property.

Pennsylvania's Statue of Hancock.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The plaster model of a large equestrian statue of General Winfield Scott Hancock has been completed by Sculptor Elwill. The statue, when cast in bronze, is to be placed, together with one of General Meade and General Reynolds, on the battlefields of Gettysburg by the state of Pennsylvania. Mr. Elwell has been at work on this model for seventeen months, and it will take about eight months more to cast the piece and complete the base.

Fast Time on the B. and O.

CINCINNATI, June 18.—The Baltimore and Ohio railway broke the record yesterday in running 691 miles in fifteen hours and twenty-six minutes. Cincinnati played at Philadelphia Saturday, and St. Louis at Baltimore. The special left Philadelphia at 6:30 Saturday night, picked up the St. Louis Browns at Baltimore at 8:47, and arrived in this city at 10:54 a. m. The last 209 miles was made in less than four hours.

Crushed to Death Under a Cinder Bank.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 18.—A terrible accident occurred at the high cinder bank in the yards of the Lehigh Zinc company, by which James Ferry was crushed to death under a fall of a portion of the bank, and James McCandless sustained injuries which proved fatal two hours later. Several other men had narrow escapes from injury.

GAMBLING DEVICES.

ELECTRICITY EMPLOYED BY SCIENTIFIC SHARPERS.

Interesting Descriptions of Two "Sure Things"—By Manipulating the Current the Dealer Can Select the Winner Every Time—But the Fools Still Bet.

It is a time worn motto that a man is a fool who attempts to beat another at his own game. Nevertheless there is a perpetual and rich crop of gullibles who insist upon throwing their hard earned money away in the vain and elusive hope that a fortune is within their easy grasp.

The method is to them of no consequence. They sincerely believe that the means deserve the end, and with this harmful and foolish idea in view they start on their downward career, fully believing themselves competent to get the best of the sharper But the sharper is proud of his name, and he does his best to deserve his title. He generally succeeds and then lies in wait for another victim. The sharper is a cute one, and it seems almost a pity that his energies are not put in more useful directions. His inventive ability is far above the average, and he contrives devices which are marvels in their way; but as Josh Billings tersely puts it, 'It iz a darned poor way"

Fresh in our minds are the developments which resulted from a raid by the police on one of the most prominent gambling establishments

Extraordinary devices were found, and everything was conducted on a scale of magnificence and ingenuity that was marvelous to behold Electricity played a prominent part In fact, everything that could be done to further the aims of the gamblers in a dishonest way was carried out to a point bordering on perfection.

There was one device for stopping the passage of a marble at a certain point, which could be changed at the will and discretion of the operator in charge Each compartment was regularly numbered and had underneath it a small secreted electro magnet, the wires from which were so connected with spring contact points placed under a footboard, which in turn was situated and hidden on the floor, that the ball could be arrested in its progress at any point.

Here, though, was apparently a difficulty in connection with its successful operation While it is true that the ball could be stopped, the suddenness of the stop would immediately attract the suspicions of the players. It was evident that the stoppage must be performed gradually, so as to appear natural A quick glance at the wheel showed the operator which compartment was the most profitable one for him. The ball slowed up, stopped, and he gathered in his ill gotten gains.

The gradual slowing up was by a successive number of weak impulses sent through the adjoining electro magnets, thus retarding the progress of the ball, which was completed by an inner sphere of soft iron surrounded by a highly polished celluloid coating. Great skill on the part of the operator was of course required to avoid detection But the men who worked this scheme felt so sure that discovery was impossible that their very boldness and audacity furthered their work. Murder, however, will out, and the secret was finally laid bare to a curious crowd.

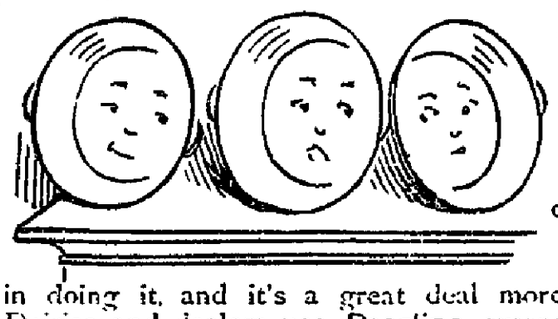
Another device that attracted considerable attention was planned to deceive the most inquiring. A table was devised the top of which contained a number of squares laid off similar to a chessboard Immediately above the center of the board was suspended a light metallic board by means of a slender silken thread. A compound mechanical motion at the top of a triangular framework placed immediately over the center of the board caused the silk thread to take a rather erratic course. On the boards were placed a number of statuettes somewhat similar to chessmen, but all of approximately the same height The suspended ball was started on its erratic course while the table was slowly revolved.

Bets were then made as to which particular piece would remain erect when all others were knocked down Piece by piece they dropped until but one remained, and this one of course was declared the prize winner. The game was even more audacious than the one above mentioned, but it anything it was more ingenious

The way in which it was made "a sure thing" for its possessor was as follows Under each individual square was placed a strong electro magnet, all the north poles pointing upward Each magnet was separately controlled in an adjoining room, a signal being conveyed to the operator by any of the well known systems common with so called "second sight" performances Inside of the light suspended ball was a compound permanent magnet with the north pole pointing downward Each marker, which Dr Corbin described as somewhat similar to the swan, was loaded with a piece of soft iron passing through its axis The pieces for as many players as were present were placed upon the board. The operator then, according to his discretion, selected the piece which he desired to remain till the last. The signal was given, and the ball was started Of course the piece left to the last was the one selected, and time after time were the wages of cheating gathered in Nor did the crowd of fools diminish

Currents from a few cells of battery being sent through the electro magnet energized it, north pole uppermost. The piece was held rather securely against the board, and even if the light ball did knock against it the force of the blow was not sufficient to dislodge it from its position —Electrical Review.

An English judge has decided that at a marriage ceremony, if the church doors are closed or one witness absent, the marriage is void.



Milk Pans,

and pails, and cans, and bottles (even baby's)—or anything that you want particularly clean, ought to be washed with Pearline

You'll save work in doing it, and it's a great deal more thoroughly done. Dairies and dealers use Pearline extensively. Just try it once, on your milk-ware or butter-ware—and then say if it isn't the most satisfactory way of cleaning. Pearline is the most economical thing you can use, too. You get so much more out of it

Send it Back Peddlers and some scrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 385 JAMES PYLE, New York.

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess,

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find no one until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways, here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath, and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows, but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself

WHY PEOPLE BLUSH.

Fear Is the True Cause, and Old People Rarely Do It.

Why do people blush? Certain emotions cause a kind of syncope The heart stops for an instant, and regaining strength immediately it acts in a stronger manner and sends the blood racing into the arteries So much for the physiological portion of the question, but we wish to know what causes these emotions.

Darwin explained this by saying that when we perceive or fancy that we are being criticised or closely observed our whole attention is forcibly directed to ourselves and is especially concentrated upon our countenance. When a particular part of the body becomes the object of such concentrated attention, its working is greatly modified. We see a good example of this in the immediate effect produced upon the saliva by thinking of a lemon. Our face reddens on the same principle. The veins relax and are filled with arterial blood.

This explanation is not quite satisfactory, and other theories have been put forward with more or less success. The latest is that of Mr. Melinard, which is at least original. We blush through modesty, timidity, bashfulness and confusion. Praise makes us blush—that is modesty. Now, what takes place within us? Something very simple. This praise pleases us, but we do not wish that fact to be perceived. Take a case of timidity. A schoolboy is asked a question which he cannot answer. He wishes to hide his ignorance, which may expose him to punishment or the gibes of his fellow scholars. He turns red.

It is the same with confusions. We have done something which we wish to hide, and we are afraid that it will become known In short, the moral state is identical in all cases. We redden because we feel that people are finding out something which we wish to hide.

M. Melinard endeavors to demonstrate the correctness of his theory by showing that when the fear of being "unmasked" is removed there is no blushing. In the case of lovers, we find at first that they blush when they meet because they are desirous to hide their sentiments. Afterward there is no sign of a blush because each knows that the other is aware of his or her sentiments and is no longer afraid of their being known.

A child does not blush. That is because he has no idea of hiding anything. As soon as he becomes old enough to understand that it may be to his interest not to tell all that he has done or all that passes in his mind he begins to redden It is the same with mute. The fear of being unmasked does not exist, and there is no blushing

Fear then is the cause of this change of countenance according to M Melinard We are more likely to turn red in front of a number of people than when we are face to face with one or two only Old people blush very seldom because they are not troubled with the fear that other people will find them out. This is a novel theory, with some good points, but there are several objections to it It is a fact that we blush involuntarily, we blush when we have nothing at all to hide in the presence of people concerning whom we are quite indifferent

Girls and boys will sometimes turn red when one inquires about the health of their father, mother or little brother That old people do not blush much is owing not to the fact that they have nothing to hide, but because they know better how to dissimulate

According to M Melinard's theory, all old people must be paragons of virtue and all young ones just the opposite, which we beg leave to doubt Nevertheless there is some truth in this new theory, and a study of this in connection with the Darwinian theory mentioned above will lead to some positive explanation of the psychology of blushing —Atlanta Constitution.

Slave Catching In Tonquin.

While in most parts of the world, except Africa, slave catching is becoming a thing of the past, the practice is still carried on to some extent in Tonquin in spite of the efforts of the French to put an end to it The practice of exporting them as slaves came about in this way

In 1885 the Chinese soldiers who invaded Tonquin, which was in revolt against China, found themselves encumbered by prisoners, but at last decided to ship them to China and see if they could not sell them It was at this time that emigration agencies were recruiting in China thousands of workmen to toil on the guano islands of Chile. The hundreds of male prisoners were easily disposed of to these emigration agents, and the women and children who were among the unfortunates were sold to well to do Chinese.

This opened a new trade, although at first it was not easy to sell the women, because wealthy families did not wish to have servants with black teeth, caused by their practice of chewing the betel nut So small a price was asked for them, however, that all the women were finally sold. Today these women are in demand in some parts of western China. As servants they are gentle, obedient and laborious and are so highly esteemed that they command a good price.—Exchange.

A Mathematical Wonder.

Rube Field, the Warrensburg (Pa.) mathematical wonder, is an imbecile and does not know one figure from another. His pastime is to give off handed answers to problems like this: "What will 520⅔ yards of calico amount to at 5¾ cents per yard, with a discount of 5 and 2½ per cent." It takes but a moment for him to answer such questions, and the reply is said to be invariably correct.

The First Hoopskirts.

Hoopskirts first appeared in 1530. An iron cage was prepared, and the skirts were stretched over it. The cage was tipped to one side, the lady crawled underneath, and the cage was fastened to her waist by a strong leather belt. The contrivance often weighed as much as 40 pounds.—Yankee Blade.

SERVING AN INJUNCTION.

Detective L. A. Newcome Tells a Story of the Early Days of the Midland Railroad

From the New York Sun.

"A Mr. Bennett, who lived out thirty-five miles from Middletown, had been advised that because the New York, Oswego and Island (Midland) Road had not paid him for his land, he could tear up their tracks. He hitched a couple of teams of oxen to the rails and pulled up a lot of it. Word of it got to this city at 4 o'clock that afternoon and an injunction was issued. To be good this must be served before 12 o'clock that night. We went bumping over the bad railroad in a special engine until we were within five miles of his house, when we ran into a land slide.

"I had Jack Minshull, the master mechanic of the road, and another man with me," Mr. Newcome said. "We knew Bennett was armed, and Minshull said he would shoot. We walked a mile past his house and approached it from the other side. His dogs began to bark, a window opened, and I could hear the barrel of his shotgun scrape along the window sill. 'Who's there?' he said. 'How far is it to Morseton?' I asked. 'Five miles.' 'I'm awfully tired,' I said; 'can't you give me a glass of milk or cider?' 'Perhaps I can' he said. Pretty soon he came to the door, gun in hand.

"All three of us rushed in. 'I thought there was only one of you.'

"'No,' I said, 'but I was afraid you wouldn't let us in if you knew there were three. Now we are in, please give us a drink.'

"'Is that clock right?' I asked, looking at the one on the wall. We all took out our watches. 'Yes,' each of us said, 'it is only 11:30.'

"'Well, Mr. Bennett,' I said, 'as it still Saturday night, I will serve this injunction upon you.'

"He was pretty mad, but he came down to Middletown next day and presented me with a string of trout he had caught on purpose."

THE LOCUSTS ARE COMING

A Jar of Specimens from Wawayanda Sent Where They are Plentiful.

Mr. DeWitt Morris, of this city, who was in the vicinity of Ridgebury, yesterday, brought home with him a jar of seventeen-year locusts, which he says, are as numerous as were their ancestors in Egypt. They are the same old pest that appeared seventeen years ago and are capable of doing as much damage. They have a distinct letter "W" on each wing, which in olden times was supposed to be a premonition of war, but in these modern days is believed to be a label for wings not but what the wings speak for themselves, but because the locust desired some other distinction than his ability to destroy vegetation.

Forgiven by Her Husband.

Mrs. Merritt Franklin, the Norwich woman who eloped with a young man of that village, last week, taking with her a sum of money belonging to her husband, and who was arrested on a charge of theft and brought back, was discharged by the Recorder, her husband refusing to press the complaint. Her husband, who was waiting at the foot of the stairs leading to the court room, shed tears of joy when she was released, and the re-united couple walked off arm in arm, as happy apparently as if nothing had ever separated them.

Another Universalist Meeting.

Rev. C. E. Nash, D. D., of Brooklyn, who began the series of meetings recently held in the interest of the Universalist Church will give another talk on the same subject, Thursday evening, June 21st, at the Assembly Rooms.

IN THE RAILROAD WORLD.

—For several weeks the O. and W.'s daily coal shipments have been 400 cars. The demand for anthracite created by the soft coal miners' strike enabled the O. and W. to dispose of all the large stock of coal that it had on hand.

GLASGOW, June 15—The American sloop yacht Vigilant arrived at Gomock, three miles from Greenock at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon after a run from Sandy Hook in fourteen days, seven hours and fifty minutes

RUINING THE OAT CROP.

Wayne County, Pa., Oat Fields Ravaged by a New Insect.

The oat crop of Wayne county, Pa., famous for its large output of this cereal, is, says the Wayne Independent, threatened with complete destruction by a small green parasite of the louse family. Until a few days ago the plants were in a thriving condition, but so rapidly is the work of destruction going on that already the growers are giving up the crop as doomed to total failure.

The appearance of the parasite is ascribed to the late protracted wet weather.

As yet the farmers of Orange county have made no mention of their oat fields being similarly attacked and it is to be hoped they will have no occasion to do so later on.

THE ORIGIN OF FIRE.

Started by a Whale, According to the South Sea Islanders.

The South Sea islanders tell a curious story of the origin of fire. If they are to be believed, they came into possession of that useful element in the following manner: A great whale was once washed ashore upon one of their islands during the prevalence of a terrible hurricane. The monster became entangled in a grove of tallow trees (a species of evergreens whose branches easily ignite), and while gnashing his teeth in his impotent rage struck off a spark which lighted the grove and consumed both trees and whale. Fires which are said to have been perpetuated since the day of the "great whale fire" may yet be seen burning in many parts of the islands.

Another fire legend, believed in by the inhabitants of the islands to the north of the ones in which the "great whale fire" is preserved, is to the effect that a great air dragon (probably lightning) breathed upon a tallow tree and set its branches on fire From the coals left from this fire they learned of its great value and have ever since used the element for domestic purposes and in their religious ceremonies. They also have a tradition that the time will come when the dragon will return for the fire, and that no man will be able to withstand him and save the sacred spark except he be a person born with pink eyes, fair skin and white hair. For this reason the birth of an albino is always hailed as a good omen and his or her person guarded with jealous care, so as to preserve life to its utmost limit. Marionette mentions seeing a "fire god" or "fire guard" (albino) while on his visit to the islands who was believed to be at least 133 years old and who had always been provided for by the tribe.

Reflinesque, who made South Sea island myths and legends a study for years, is of the opinion that the return of the dragon for his fire is symbolic of death and the flight of the spirit.—St Louis Republic.

Leprosy In Germany.

There is in the German empire a hotbed of leprosy. According to the investigations of the imperial board of health, whose attention was directed to the fact by a physician, there are at present 10 lepers in the district of Mamel, eastern Prussia. Eight other lepers died in 1877. Six of these 18 cases were single persons. The other 12 extended over five families. Of those who died, 2 suffered from the disease 5 years; others 13, 10, 9, 7 and 1 year The first case occurred, as far as can be found out, 20 years ago. Only one of the 18 had ever left home so the origin of the disease cannot be found.—Berlin Correspondent.

Bullet Proof Coats.

Germany will not have a monopoly of bullet proof coats. An Englishman has made a similar article of vegetable fibers from India and Africa which is used daily at a London music hall, where a young woman wearing it is fired at by rifle experts with regulation army ammunition There is no humbug about the performance, and the government is investigating the invention.

THE BENTON AVENUE CASE.

Argument Before Judge Dykman at White Plains, Saturday.

The hearing before Judge Dykman, at White Plains, Saturday, on the question of whether the temporary injunction should be continued was opened by Luther R. Marsh, who stated to the court that it was in order for the Traction Company to show cause why the injunction should not be continued.

Wm. Vanamee, Esq., then made the argument for the company. He claimed that the electric railway is simply a modification of the horse railway and that the erection of poles and stringing of wires creates no new burden or servitude upon the street. He argued further that in any view of the case under the claim made by the lot owners that they own the fee of the street, even if they are entitled to compensation for the award of damages, but that meantime the construction and operation of the road should be permitted to go on as soon as the company obtains the legal consents provided for by the statute. He declared that the company was seeking these consents by open, honorable means and that there was absolutely no foundation for the charge that it contemplated any premature, secret or unlawful proceedings.

After discussing the legal and technical questions involved, he proceeded to discuss the objections made by the residents of Benton avenue to the electric railway, upon the ground that Benton avenue is a residence street and that they cannot endure the noise, annoyance and disturbance of an electric railway. Mr. Vanamee said in part:

"The papers and proceedings of the plaintiff seem to assume that the Court is behind the age and is living in the past There are over six hundred electric railways in the United States. That stateliest residence street in all the land, Euclid avenue, Cleveland, famed the world over for its beauty and magnificence, has an electric railway. The loveliest streets in the beautiful city of Rochester have electric railways. Surely the Court will take judicial notice of all this. It is not possible that this Court can be ignorant of the common, familiar facts of daily experience, or of the application of this great principle of electricity to the needs and conveniences of modern life. Why, we have harnessed this mighty force to our civilization and it is too late now for private clamor or for individual selfishness, sordidness and exclusiveness to obstruct its useful beneficent mission, or seek to arrest its manifold uses, its manifest destiny in the affairs of men.

"The peculiar adaption of the electric railway to suburban and interurban communication has been quickly recognized by our practical, progressive people. It meets a demand which plainly exists and which must be satisfied. The electric railway has come to stay and Benton avenue, with all its fine residences, must bend to the march of invention and to the progress of events.

"Every consideration contained in the plaintiff's papers, and urged against the electric railway system, can be addressed appropriately only to the wisdom of the Legislature which passed the general act or to the judgment of the local authorities who grant the franchise. How out of place, then are the wild, extravagant, over wrought, highly colored pictures of the electric railway contained in these papers—'octopus,' 'juggernaut,' 'a buzzing monster, 'a tigh'ning driven chariot,' 'messengers of death.' All these expressions are felicitous enough, in a literary sense, if addressed to the proper tribunal, but, addressed to this Court, as the basis for decision upon a legal question, they are mere nonsense and drivel—if I must fitly characterize them, they are pure rot."

Mr Vanamee vindicated the action of the Common Council in granting the franchise to go through Benton avenue, at the meeting on Tuesday last. He showed that Mr. Marsh had no reason to complain, as he did complain in his affidavit, because the Board had not, after listening to his argument postponed action until the members could take home the printed copy and read it over again The Common Council had listened with patience, attention and respect, to the thirty printed pages of that argument, as they were read by the distinguished gentleman himself, with all the excursions, embellishments, elaborations and illustrations which sprang so readily and spontaneously from his brilliant and fertile genius

Mr. Vanamee defended the action of the Common Council against the charge made in Mr. Marsh's affidavit that his associate, Mr. Finn, had not been treated fairly at the meeting. He showed that Mr. Finn had forfeited the privilege of the floor by an unjustifiable personal attack upon the Mayor, and he contended that the Common Council had a right to preserve order and decency in its own proceedings.

Mr. Vanamee also repelled the aspersions cast upon the Common Council in Mr. Marsh's affidavit to the effect that Aldermen Ludington and Mance had been influenced in their official action by the paltry, far-fetched consideration that the Ontario Railway had received some freight, under its duty as a common carrier, which was consigned to the Traction Company.

Mr. Vanamee ridiculed the sensitiveness displayed by Mrs. Huyler as to passengers returning past her residence over the railroad from the imaginary beer garden, at Midway Park. He thought such extreme delicacy upon this subject came with very poor taste from a woman, who had several properties in Middletown, which were rented for the sale of intoxicating liquor. He said that the defendants's affidavits at first mentioned three such properties, but that it had been changed to two, because the Board of Excise had recently upon the complaint of our best citizens refused to renew the license of the third, notwithstanding that an elaborate argument by Mr. Marsh had been read before the Board in favor of a license.

Mr. Vanamee added that he had not yet learned that a mandamus had been issued to compel the Board to issue a license, even though it had, like the Common Council, presumed to differ from the distinguished gentleman and to overrule his argument.

Mr. Vanamee also ridiculed Dr Fancher for rushing to the defence of Mrs. Huyler in an affidavit in her suit which he furnished on Thursday last and in a letter to a newspaper, which was also made a part of Mrs Huyler's moving papers. He explained to the court that Dr. Fancher's letter was denounced as hysterical by the very newspaper which published it, which declared also that his frantic attempt to block a great public improvement would only excite the derision of ninety-nine out out of a hundred people.

Mr Vanamee said that Mrs. Huyler's attorney had failed to add to their papers this additional comment upon Dr. Fancher's letter, but that he would supply the omission and make that contribution to the literary history of this controversy.

Lawyer Keogh, of Westchester county, attorney for Mrs. Huyler, followed in an argument, in which he claimed there was only a legal question involved, that of the necessary consents. It was not a matter of the desirability of the street as a route, or whether certain persons would be pleased or displeased with electric cars in the street. All such questions raised do not apply.

Hon. Luther B. Marsh followed in a long argument favoring the continuance of the injunction, in which he covered the entire ground from the original application for a franchise up to the present.

Judge Dykman had listened patiently to the three arguments, and when Mr. Vanamee arose to reply to Mr. Marsh he said he thought he had heard enough and would reserve judgment, and give until Saturday next to file briefs

LIZZIE HALLIDAY'S TRIAL.

Begins at Monticello, This Afternoon—District Attorney Confident of Conviction—The Prisoner Unwilling to Talk—Her Appearance in Court.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., June 18.—The trial of Mrs. Lizzie Halliday, of Burlingham, indicted for the murder of Paul Halliday, her husband, Margaret and Sarah McQuillan, began, to-day, before Judge Edwards, and the work of selecting a jury is now in progress.

The prisoner will be defended by Geo. H Carpenter, of Liberty, and the defense will be insanity.

Court opened at 2 30 o'clock, Judge Samuel Edwards presiding. Sheriff Beecher admitted only jurymen, witnesses and reporters.

District Attorney Hill expects to be able to convict the woman. He paid a visit to her cell, to-day, and is more than ever convinced that she is shamming insanity. She would not talk to him nor has she to anyone, to day.

Mrs. Halliday was brought in at 3 o'clock and seated between Constables Erastus Kniffen and Tom Porter. She was neatly dressed in brown serge She looked down all the time and sucked her thumb or bit on a handkerchief. A large hair pin in the middle of a Grecian knot, was a conspicuous feature of her get up.

AN EARLY MORNING FIRE

The House on Sprague Avenue Occupied by Whitfield Thompson Badly Damaged.

An alarm was sounded at 3.15 o'clock, this morning, from box 15 at the corner of Grant street and Sprague avenue. Fire was discovered in the residence occupied by Mr. Whitfield Thompson, 56 Sprague avenue. Monhagens were first on the scene and soon had a stream on the fire.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp which Mr. Thompson had left burning while he had gone to the barn to look after the team of horses which he drives. His family are all out of town and it is thought that Mr. Thompson, whose eyesight is very poor, must have left the lamp in an unsafe condition.

The interior of the dwelling was badly damaged by fire and water. The building is owned by Mr. L. S. Waring, of Greenpoint, L. I., and the loss is fully covered by insurance. Mr. Thompson had a policy for $800 on the furniture.

Ladies Who Sleet.

What a great number there are, how uncomfortable it makes them; it is almost impossible for these afflicted to enjoy life. In my private practice I have always found Sulphur Bitters to be the best remedy. All who are thus troubled should use it. MRS. DR. CHILDS, Boston.

INCIDENTS AND HAPPENINGS IN GOSHEN.

Unsuccessful Ball Players—Commencement Exercises—Damage by Lightning—Other Notes.

From our regular correspondent

—Some our ball players visited Walden, Saturday, and played the Walden Club. They were beaten by a score of 11 to 8.

—The commencement exercises of the Goshen Public Shool, at Music Hall, to-night, will be of a very interesting nature.

—The heavy shower, Saturday afternoon, did considerable damage in this village and vicinity. Trees were blown down and the lightning struck in several places. The Catholic church was struck and several windows broken, but no further damage was done. Two cows were killed by lightning on Mrs. Matthews' farm and several trees and barns were struck.

—John VanVleet and Willard Jessup are home from Princeton College, for their summer vacation.

—Murray avenue has been staked out for curbing, which will greatly improve that already pleasant street.

CUT DOWN AT HIS POST.

An O and W. Flagman, While Warning Others of Danger, Is Himself Fatally Injured.

Mr. Justus Terwilliger, an aged and well known citizen, who for some time past has been at the Montgomery street crossing of the O and W., was struck and fatally injured, Saturday evening, while in the discharge of his duty and in the very act of warning others of danger.

The second milk train was coming south and Mr. Terwilliger, while standing upon one of the switches, began waving his flag to warn people from crossing the track. At the same time an extra freight, W. Kirby, conductor, was backing up the switch Mr Terwilliger did not see it and was struck by the caboose, knocked down and rolled under the cars, sustaining terrible injuries, the fingers of both hands being cut off and one side of his head crushed so that the brain was exposed, besides other serious wounds about the body.

The bruised and mangled body was picked up and found to be still alive and he was taken to Thrall Hospital and all that was possible was done for him, but there is little hope of his recovery.

Mr. Terwilliger died at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

ODD FELLOWS' MEMORIAL SERVICES

Large Attendance and Interesting Exercises in Hillside Cemetery.

The Odd Fellows' memorial services conducted by Middletown Lodge, assisted by Luther Lodge, attracted many people to Hillside Cemetery, yesterday. Eighty-five members of the craft assembled at the lodge rooms at 2 o'clock and marched in a body to the cemetery under the leadership of Brothers O. C Foss and E. H Townsend.

The memorial proclamation, which was read by N. G. John Northrup, was written by G. S. Clarence T Campbell, of New York, and was used throughout the State by the Odd Fellows in their memorial services.

The reading was followed by an ode sung by the members of both lodges, after which a quartette composed of Messrs H. Hirst, W. W. Clark, C H Brown and J. B. Wheat sang a hymn.

A prayer was then offered by Rev T. A. Heath, of the First Baptist Church, after which the quartette again sang.

An oration by Rev. Mr Heath followed the singing, the exercises being closed by the grand chorus "America."

Excelsior's Truck Smashes a Lamp Post.

While Excelsiors were making the turn from Orchard street into East Main street, on their way to the fire, this morning, the hind wheels of the truck struck the street car tracks and the tiller was knocked out of Foreman Schoonmaker's hands. The wheels turned towards the curb and struck a lamp post on the corner, knocking the top off. The truck was not damaged, and no one was hurt.

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 28 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was again a strong, healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a second improvement in the circulation of my blood. Week I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost putrefied. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own housework. On my recommendation six others are using this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Morgan, 1017 Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart diseases, is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee or sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle. Six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opium, morphine or dangerous drugs.

A FLASH IN THE NIGHT

SIGNALS OF LIGHT AT FIRE ISLAND AND THEIR ANSWERS.

How News Is Sent In From Sea Through the Darkness and Lives and Property Are Saved—The Pilotboats and the Lonely Watchers on the Beach on the Lookout.

Stowed snugly away in his little tower at Fire island, the man who always has his weather eye open sweeps the horizon with his night glass, watching and waiting. Beside him is his list of vessels bound to the great port of which the flaming beacon way above his head is one of the sentinels, and all around are the moaning of the distant surf, the breaking of waves on the beach at his feet and the whistle of the wind as it eddies and swirls around the tower and huge lamp at its top. Minute after minute passes away, each one marked by a great beam of light sent out over the waters.

Suddenly there comes from the southeast, as if thrown up by the ocean, a gleam of red—red, the danger signal, but the watcher is not disturbed. He only waits. Not for long, however, as the night glass pointed toward that point of red on the ocean's rim shows a blue light on each side of it, about 100 feet away, while just below the red light is a faint speck of green. That is enough. The signals have told their story, and the next instant a blinding flash of green light from the tower answers the distant vessel, and before its glare has died away the electric spark has sent to the Western Union Telegraph office and to every newspaper in the city the message, "Steamer Paris southeast of Fire island."

The big boat speeds on her way. The watcher checks her name off the list of vessels due. But others have seen the green signal. The dim lights of the steamer had not attracted the attention of the sailors on the little pilotboat standing to the eastward, but the brilliant flash of green told them that a signal had been answered, and there was no need for the Paris to send up the familiar pilot call of white—red—white. The Paris meant $150 for the pilot catching her, and the men started right off after her, knowing that she was due and hoping it was her signal that had been answered.

The ocean greyhound has passed away to the westward in the darkness, and again the watcher resumes his vigil. But the wind has increased. The breeze has given way before a gathering of the forces of the air, and up from the southwest comes a surging of waves, and the surf is beating and pounding on the shore with a hollow, resounding boom that tells of a tempest abroad in the night. Blacker and blacker grow the clouds overhead, narrower and narrower grows the circle of inky sea and sky that marks the limits of vision, and while the faithful monitor overhead keeps up its clocklike regularity of blazing and fading its range of power is constantly lessened by the coming storm.

Down on the beach the swing of a lantern marks where the life saver is steadily tramping along to meet his companion from the next station. It is a terribly lonely mission. He is alone with the moaning surf, and each step is like entering some enchanted realm of darkness, ruled by the spirit of the storm. On one side of him is the sullen, grinding sea, on the other a waste of sand, and in front the fitful gleam of his own lantern. He is lonely and cold, but that has no terrors for him. His next step may touch some one lonelier and colder than he—a human body tossed into the moist, unyielding sand. Or away through the breakers rises the form of a ship, helpless for all her strength, driven by the gale far on the shore despite the friendly warning from the tall tower with its finger of flame.

Then the crimson signal in his hand tells the watch at the station that there is work to do, and the wrecked mariners that help is at hand. He hurries to the station to assist in the preparations for rescue. As he nears the little house there begins a brilliant display of fireworks. A glare of red, changing to a clear white, which is followed by a vivid green, conveys the message to the next station, and a bright white blaze tells that the signal is seen and understood, and then the beautiful Coston lights send shooting through the gloom a series of orders easily understood. A bright green tells the distant watchers that aid is needed, and a red and green call for boats and equipments. A red and white would have called for a rocket apparatus, a green and red for the life car or "breeches buoy," and so on, different combinations of colors conveying different instructions.

But it is not always stern business that calls into play the Coston colors. A big yachting club has its regatta. From up and down the coast come the swift, white winged or steam driven pleasure craft. Some of the stragglers come in late, and as a white—red—green—white succession of fires appears lighting up the sails of a belated flier the waiting fleet prepares to welcome the wanderer from the Eastern Yacht club of Boston, and chasing close after her comes a red—white, followed by a red and then a white star, and the welcome to the man from Boston is extended to the Commodore's delegate.

Next comes a four color combination, and the red—white—green which is followed by a blue star shows that one of the American Steam Yacht club's boats has fallen in line.—New York Tribune.

"ADAMANT" WALL PLASTER!

The New, Cheap Substitute for Common Plaster.

It is very hard and very adhesive; it does away with the warping and shrinkage of doors and sashings, and the building is not saturated with water, as it necessarily must be when common plaster is used; it costs originally but little more than lime plaster, and in the end its superior qualities make it immeasurably cheaper; it saves waiting several weeks or months for the buildings to dry out; it does not crack or fall off, even in the case of leakage; it is applied easily by any good plasterer; it is the only material with which repairing can be done neatly and "to stay."

When the World Was a Cube.

To a person who reads modern books and modern literature in general, and who has never had either time, opportunity or inclination to strike off into the bypaths which were so frequently and industriously followed by ancient writers, thinkers and dreamers, the heading of this "note" will be an enigma. Without further speculation, however, and following the desire which should always be uppermost in every writer's mind—that of at once getting the subject itself before the reader—I will say that there was a time, centuries since, of course, when the learned men of the world really taught that the world was a square, not merely flat, but that it was a cube. The primitive geographers of Egypt, Assyria and China all taught that the world was a "square plane," evidence of which may be found on thousands of ancient monuments in the countries mentioned, as well as in their ancient manuscripts, upon their inscribed tablets of clay and other early literary remains.

One of the most curious discoveries ever made in Central America concerning Toltec belief, symbols, etc., is that they also had a similar idea concerning the form of what we now speak of as the "globe." A late writer on the discoveries made among the monumental ruins of that country says, "They (meaning the Peruvians, Toltecs and Quichés) believe the world to be a cube, suspended from the heavens by cords of gold fastened to each of its corners."—Exchange.

Charles Johnson, a negro, though of Swedish nomenclature had been arrested for highway robbery out on Independence avenue. A toy pistol, which had served him in "making a bluff," and a handful of small coin were taken from him. He was then ushered before the captain for the usual catechism.

"Let's see, what were you in for the last time, Charley?"

"Never done beah heah befo', boss."

"Oh, come, now, Charley, you've been here a dozen times before."

"May de good Lawd 'rmlate me, boss, I'ze tellin yuh de troof!"

"Well, take him and lock him up."

"Hol on der, cap'n, ain't yuh gwine ter let me hab my money?"

"Well, I guess not," said the captain, winking at the lieutenant. "This is my rakeoff. Do you suppose I can stay here for nothing?"

"But yuh'll let me hab it in de mawnin, won't yuh?"

"No, sir."

"Not afteh the jedge gits t'rough wid me?"

"No."

"Say, yuh can't fool me dat a-way, boss. I'ze been heah befo!"

Then the old darky was taken down stairs, wondering what everybody was laughing about.—Kansas City Times.

Boiled Fish Sandwiches.

You may find it hard to believe that sandwiches made from boiled fish are good, but if when you have a bit of boiled halibut left from dinner you make a few for luncheon or tea you will find them very good. The fish should of course have the flavor that comes from boiling in salted water with a bouquet of vegetables—say a slice of onion a stalk of celery or a sprig of parsley and half a dozen peppercorns. Break up the fish with a fork then rub it with a wooden spoon and rub it as fine as possible. Make it into a seasoned paste by adding

A BACCALAUREATE SERMON

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF WALLKILL ACADEMY.

Doctor Gordon's Address Full of Good, Sound Advice to the Young Men and Women—Stability of Character the True Secret of Success.

The first Presbyterian Church was crowded, yesterday morning, to hear Rev. Dr. Gordan deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Wallkill Academy, composed of the following young ladies and gentlemen: Misses May Harriet Corwin, Claribel Gardner, May Eva Purvis, Nora Aldrich Roosa, and Messrs. Richard Knight, Abram Lipfeld, Frank Tannery Chambers, Frank Halsey Finn and Merritt Emmet Dunning.

The members of the Board of Education, the teachers of the Academy and the graduating class, marched into the church in a body and took the seats reserved for them.

The following is Dr. Gordon's address:

The text was from Gen. xlix-4: "Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel." This is a sentence from the valedictory of a most remarkable man. It is the dying address of Jacob to his twelve sons. Like the dying swan's it is the strongest and sweetest song. Never were those closing eyes so discriminating as now. They flash and glitter with the most brilliant criticisms.

He begins with Reuben, his first born. He contrasts his original advantages with the destiny which he determines for himself and his tribe by his character. He plainly announces self-rule as the underlying conditions of success.

From this character are suggested two lines of thought; appropriate for this morning, and for these young men and women.

First—The direct, which is the instability of character, Reuben's character is compared to water, "unstable as water." Water has no cohesive shape of its own. It is made up of Globules which touch one another as marbles in a bag. Like the sand on the sea shore these particles are easily separated. Again water assumes the form of the vessel into which it is poured. This peculiarity of water suggests the instability of character with these characteristics; how can you young men and young women ever expect to attain an independent position in life, or how can you fill an honored sphere meeting all the just claims which come upon you? No such position can be gained if you are Reuben's men of the water type.

In the instability of water there is also the change in its appearance, its color and its reflection. You have watched the bosom of the lake or river, or you have looked out upon the broad expanse of ocean, and have been impressed with its changes, its smiles or its frowns. This sensitive mirror reflects whatever surrounds it. It takes the moon, and the blue arch sky and the changing seasons into the depths of its confidence, but those depths are only its surface. All this is beautiful enough in nature, but surely was never intended to represent the character of man. Such a condition only illustrates how impossible it is for the unstable to attain true culture or character.

In the instability of water there is naturally inspired the feeling of suspicion and distrust. In its very calm there is danger. So the instability of character destroy's man's influence. The successful men in all departments of national life, in peace and war, are not the men of great natural gifts, but the men who command and inspire confidence, the men who are never wavering or irresolute.

There is still another point of comparison, the direction in which water by its very nature will not move; that is upward. By its very instability it will descend to its level. It will not rise to its source. Alas, that this most serious aspect of instability should be so general in its application to man. This indicision unfits man for successful efforts of the higher and nobler life. Let Reuben's character and fate be a warning to you.

The doctor then impressed upon the young men and women how they could avoid Reuben's faults, by cultivating principles which inspire strength, by learning what one is capable of doing, by having method or system in the affairs of life, pure and good associations, taking an early and manly stand, being God's children, make fast to something that is fast, and not to be swept like thistledown before the ever varying gales of human experience.

Second—The reflex, which is stability of character. With this, excellence is attainable by every man. It is to this conception and attainment which I would lift you. The true man or Christian is marked by nothing more certainly than by steadfastness and decision of purpose. He makes good resolutions and keeps them. He gets his face like a flint and is not ashamed. He receives sunshine and rain. He walks by the side of his own independent judgment. He stands squarely on his convictions. It was the lack of [illegible] which Jacob deplored in [illegible] and for which the birthright was given to another. It is the [illegible] and the excellence which [illegible] possible, that I would impress this morning.

There [illegible] or combination of virtues which the world more esteems than stability of mind. It is a miserable thing to see men and women driven before the wind like a thistle down. You can easily make your choice whether you will be like balloons at the mercy of the gale, or like the great ocean steamers which have an inward power, enabling them to keep their course, from whatever point the wind blows, or like some well built sailing vessel, with canvas set and strong hands at the helm, sailing into the very teeth of the wind, going in the opposite direction to that in which it would carry her if she lay like a log in the water, why should not every one of you have stability of this type, and so excel in life's historic struggle which you are now beginning, some of you so auspiciously.

The way to excellence you will find sometimes a steep and rough road. The world will handle you as roughly as it has handled your predecessors in every calling and profession. If you would excel you must master the world in the contest by sheer force of will. You will find that determined striving towards one point is the only sure way of gaining that object.

Life only reaches its true nobility when it has driven through it the strength of a uniting single purpose, like the strong shaft of iron bolting together two tottering walls of some old building, or that purpose upon which your life is built.

Then success is not only attainable, but enduring when attained. Like the beautiful figure of victory, which I saw a few days ago, placed on that splendid monument at West Point. A bar of steel runs through the statue into a steel socket, which passes through the cap down into the strong granite shaft. Thus secured, that heroic figure, gracefully poised and apparently as light as a child's toy, securely stands defying the fury of strong gales. So, you, having been fitted by parents and teachers for positions of prominence and responsibility, need to be anchored by a strong and resolute purpose, a stability which will defy all the adverse winds, which blow upon you. In this way you will accomplish life's mission with success, winning the approbation of your fellow men and of your God.

CONTROL OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Dr. Darwood's Temperance Sermon, Last Night—Renounces Republicanism for Prohibition—Hopes Women May Have a Chance to Vote Against the Saloon.

Rev. Dr. Darwood addressed a large audience, last evening, at St. Paul's Church, on "How can we control the liquor traffic?" All of the city temperance organizations were invited to be present, and three of them occupied seats in the centre of the auditorium, viz: the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Wallkill Council, R. T. of T., and Excelsior Lodge, I. O. of G. T.

Dr. Darwood spoke for nearly an hour, from Isaiah x: 1, 2. In the beginning of his discourse he declared that he had always been a Republican, but hereafter his working sympathies would be with that party which would use its powers to annihilate the liquor traffic. When he made use of the word "prohibition" he wanted it distinctly understood that he meant just what he said, but did not refer to any political party.

The doctor ridiculed the idea of attempting to control the liquor traffic by moral suasion, and affirmed there is as much prospect of reforming the devil by moral suasion as there is of reforming a saloon keeper by this means. "If ever these men had a moral character, they have lost it," declared the speaker, "and better go and get another among those of their own class. When the ranks of liquor sellers are filled with men of good moral character, the angels will swap heaven for hell and pay the difference in gold stolen from the New Jerusalem. The devil himself was as much a friend to humanity and human happiness, when he crawled into the garden and assaulted an innocent woman, as the liquor dealer."

The doctor assailed the high license theory and denounced Warner Miller as a stupendous fraud, whom he "was fool enough to vote for when he ran for Governor." The doctor gave several reasons why he opposed the license system and said there was nothing left the temperance people to do but stop the traffic by prohibitory legislation.

He has great hopes that the women will yet be permitted to march to the polls with their husbands and by their ballots declare that the traffic shall be no more.

"OUR CITY AFTER DARK."

As Seen by Rev. F. A. Heath on a Sunday Night.

Rev. F. A. Heath, of the First Baptist Church, preached an interesting sermon, on Sunday evening, to as large a congregation as the church would hold. His subject was "Our City After Dark" and his text was Isaiah 3o.

He stated that he had made a tour of the streets from 10 to 1 o'clock on the previous Sunday night.

As to the saloons, he said his attitude on the excise question was well known. Sin is to be prohibited, not permitted. But the way license works is that money is paid for permission to sell under restriction, but the license obtained, restrictions are winked at and the aim is to get back the license money and as much more as possible.

The saloons do business on Sundays, contrary to law. Said he:

"I saw in my tour of the streets not in one, but in many places, men drinking at the front of the bar and the bartender serving them from behind it."

The reverend gentleman also said that the streets are frequented by girls as late as 1 o'clock. Another charge, and a grievous one, was that Hillside Cemetery is used as a trysting place for lewd people. He also observed at houses of ill fame signals for admission answered, and heard vile conversation inside.

The remedy for all this, he claimed, is that without regard to race or creed all stand together and create a public sentiment for the enforcement of the law.
